

wormed last season. It results in a reduction in routine worming of lambs except for an early dose to combat Nematodirus. However, they have discovered an increase in fluke infestation.

As well as their farming enterprise they operate a lamb collection centre for Vion from the farm. John undertakes all arrangements for receiving and removal of the lambs although isn't involved in selection.

With a decade's experience of breeding Charollais x lambs John and Kate continue to be impressed with the performance and versatility of the breed and have no plans to change from their current system.
